

Dear Lukewarm Christian

By T.W. Tramm

Dear lukewarm Christian:

Would you have believed just a few months ago if someone had told you that the world was about to be turned upside down—that in the US alone there would be more than 100,000 dead, 40 million unemployed, and that we would be facing the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression? It should be no surprise as the Scriptures say these types of things would be happening around this time (Matt. 24:32-34). The problem is that most self-professed Christians don't regularly study the Bible or its prophecies.

Many, because they're consumed with worldly pursuits, would rather not think about Jesus coming back.

God loves you anyway.

However, He implores you to wake up and to be as passionate about Him as He is about you. If you don't wake up, when He returns, it will feel like being startled from a deep sleep by a thief breaking into your house (Rev. 3:3).

Dear non-believer:

Can you believe all the terrible things happening at once around the world? Even non-Christians are talking about "the end" being upon us.

As surreal and difficult as life has suddenly become, it's about to get infinitely worse.

I say this with confidence because the Bible—the only book proven to accurately predict the future—tells us that as the restored Nation of Israel reaches the "generation" milestone, which it has, and people are saying "peace and safety," which they are, calamitous events will increase in frequency and intensity until Judgment Day comes upon the world like a snare (Matt. 24:32-34; Ps. 90:10; 1 Thess. 5:3; Luke 21:34, 35).

The good news is that there is a way to avoid the snare: Call on Jesus and ask Him into your heart. Those who abide in the Lord become part of the Bride of Christ and are counted worthy to escape all the things about to come upon the earth (1 Thess. 5:9-11; Luke 21: 36).

Christian and non-Christian, let those who have an ear respond to God's wake-up call.

Do it today.

Time is running out.
